Heyground Harlem, run by Communitas America
ROOTED IN OUR COMMUNITY, AND BEYOND

Communitas America began five years ago in the fall of 2018. Despite challenges posed by the pandemic and instances of social and political unrest, we have remained true to our commitment to foster hyperlocal and inclusive entrepreneurship, primarily in the Bronx and Harlem of New York City. Continuous innovation and adaptation have been key for us, which we could not succeed in without our supporters and partners. Their collaboration reaffirms that we are on the right track in enhancing the significance and influence of community-driven entrepreneurs.

First and foremost, our primary supporters are Communitas Ventures alumni and our family of nearly 200 program participants from Cohorts 1 to 11. The Chung Family, Justworks.org, the Siegel Family Endowment, and the New York State Empire Development Corporation, which certified us as an NYS Business Incubator, have all provided unwavering encouragement to continue our Communitas Ventures Accelerator, and soon launch upcoming new initiatives centered on our bold ideas and investment in community-driven entrepreneurs who take risks to better serve our communities.

Since Heyground Harlem opened in March 2023, our community of entrepreneurs has brought the space to life with over 100 programs, events, and community gatherings. The dynamic activity has positioned Heyground Harlem as a place where culture and economy meet. Collaborating closely with our neighbors and partner organizations, such as Columbia Business School, CUNY, Blue Ridge Labs, and EGF Accelerator, who are great thinking partners, helps us navigate resources to tackle systemic challenges embedded in the entrepreneurial ecosystem. Collectively, we have forged a unique and community-driven entrepreneurship program that’s needed, but remains untapped.

Personally, I prefer avoiding the word “help,” as its direction and meaning need to be reconsidered. I don’t view our role in the program as providing help, but rather as receiving support from our alumni entrepreneurs, who, in turn, provide support to one another. Our alumni entrepreneurs, many with lived experiences, are our most astute partners. They are courageous risk-takers who invest their time and energy into the communities they come from or serve. We will continue to learn from them, facilitate the peer learning within the community of entrepreneurs, and keep improving our programs to better serve them.

Lastly, I would like to extend our gratitude to our founder, Kyungsun, as well as our esteemed board of directors: Dorothy, Malcom, Yolanda, and William. Their support has allowed our creative minds to flourish, and has inspired us to consistently push the boundaries of innovation within our program.

While we are deeply rooted in our communities, we also aim to push ourselves further, venturing beyond our current boundaries in the coming five years.

ABOUT COMMUNITAS AMERICA

Communitas America launched in 2018, drawing inspiration from our sister organization Root Impact’s meaningful growth in Seoul, South Korea. Communitas America is a nonprofit organization that empowers social entrepreneurs to promote economic mobility, build family wealth, and reshape local communities.

We serve diverse women and BIPOC entrepreneurs who face persistent and significant barriers due to structural racism. Our work fuels a wider impact-driven ecosystem providing inclusivity, access, opportunities, and entrepreneurial tools in historically under-resourced communities like the Bronx and Harlem in New York City.
We are building an inclusive ecosystem, primarily made up of BIPOC and women changemakers, who are helping create equitable local economies in historically under-resourced communities in the U.S.

Including Cohort 10, we have served over 175 entrepreneurs to date.

Impact Data 2018 - June 2023 (Cohorts 1-10)

Cohort 5 alum Hetal Jani (founder of SpeakHire) running a hybrid professional development workshop for immigrant youth in the Forum at Heyground Harlem. SpeakHire collaborated with six Communitas Ventures program alumni from cohorts 8-10 for this event.

- Mac Exumé, founder of CampusLush and Cohort 10 Ventures Award winner

MISSION STATEMENT

First Tech Fund breaks down barriers for students by providing them with technology, mentorship, and career advancement curricula. Josue was recently selected as a 2022-2023 Obama Foundation Scholar.

THE COMMUNITY AND SUPPORT IS UNMATCHED

- Josue De Paz, founder of First Tech Fund, Cohort 6 participant, and Communitas America grant awardee

This is the first time that I have truly experienced community in this manner. From the guidance to the friendships, it has been nothing short of amazing.

The Communitas America team brainstorming and co-creating with Communitas Ventures alumni and ecosystem partners at a Heyground Harlem Town Hall in August 2023. Members come together at Town Halls to set goals, plan skill-sharing workshops, and weigh in on Heyground Harlem’s community and evolution.
Communitas Ventures is currently running its eleventh cohort. We have served 195 entrepreneurs since launching the program in 2018, awarding over $300K in seed funding across 30+ ventures.

At Communitas America, we believe that those with lived experience and proximity to a problem are best equipped to solve it. Our professional development accelerator serves entrepreneurs solving for equity, inclusion, and diverse representation in their communities. The program is sector agnostic, to facilitate real-world intersectional collaboration among entrepreneurs supporting underserved communities.

Communitas Ventures runs twice a year. The 10-week cohort-style program combines structured business development coaching, guest speakers, workshops on impact models, business models, and pitching, peer mentoring, networking events, legal, financial, and marketing consultations, wellness programming, skill-sharing workshops, a pitch competition, resource navigation support, and - most importantly - a thriving community of likeminded changemakers who address inequities in our communities.

Our Communitas Ventures program culminates in Pitch Night, where entrepreneurs showcase their ventures through pitches, vendor stands, and panels discussions.

For Cohort 10, we partnered with Columbia Business School’s Tamer Center for Social Enterprise. They co-hosted pitch night, and awarded the first inaugural Tamer Center Award for social impact, in addition to five Communitas America grants, totaling $33,000 in support for our entrepreneurs.

Second Wind is a co-op empowering indigenous Ecuadorian artisans. Founder Diego Torres shares a prototype from the artisans’ Edith brand, an heirloom childrenswear line using traditional embroidery techniques.

The World’s Borough Bookshop is a BIPOC-centered bookstore. Founder Adrian Cepeda leveraged Communitas America and other seed funding to open his physical space in Queens in August 2023.

Liberty Learning Group is a Bronx-based childcare and learning center for parents with non-traditional work schedules. Founder Jessica Duran is currently conducting customer discovery research.
Our incubator space launched in March 2023 in Harlem, New York. Leveraging hybrid meeting rooms, event spaces, screening capabilities, communal working spaces, and a community gathering hub, Communitas America hosts regular networking events and pipeline development workshops with ecosystem partners, anchored by our signature Heyground Sundowners happy hours, morning Coffee + Impact workshops, co-creating Town Halls, legal workshops, and more.

After completing the Communitas Ventures program, entrepreneurs are eligible for subsidized access to Heyground Harlem, where we continue to incubate their ventures and support their community impact.

Since March 2023, our members have held over 100 events, including professional development programs, brainstorming sessions, internship programs, book fairs, poetry slams, pilot launches, press interviews, wellness programs, and skill-sharing workshops. These alumni member-activated programs have invited over 500 local community residents and partners.
